

Creating Innovation Leadership Solutions

ROR Proposal Evaluation Criteria

The ROR Leadership Team will consider the following questions when evaluating submitted proposals:

1. What makes the subject matter relevant to the IRI membership? What indicators are there that this is important to the wider IRI audience? Is it timely? Is there a sufficient gap in knowledge to warrant this project?*
2. What value will the project offer to participants? To the IRI membership?
3. Is there a strong project team in place?
4. What are the research methods proposed for getting the information needed? Will they get the information that is needed to complete the project?
5. What are the resources required to complete the project? Is there a plan in place for obtaining them?
6. What are the deliverables? Are they realistic? What is the timing for the deliverables? Will they provide value to the IRI membership?

Note: IRI staff will also conduct a review of the IRI archives to see the level/type of research that has been done on this topic in the past and submit it with the proposal.*
